ANGAMA TO OPEN NEW MOBILE TENTED CAMP

MAASAI MARA – February 2020: Angama is delighted to announce the July 2020 opening of Angama Safari Camp, a seasonal sole-use tented camp situated in a remote wilderness region of the south-western Mara Triangle.

Experience an exclusive Mara safari in the midst of the mega herds during the Migration

The team that created Angama Mara has reunited to launch the new Safari Camp with Jan Allan on tent design and interiors by Annemarie Meintjes. Comprising just four tents, sleeping eight guests, the camp will offer absolute privacy in the midst of the mega herds of the Migration and abundant resident wildlife.

“The design, quite unlike any other mobile tented camp, will be fresh, light and uncluttered, making for easy living while echoing many of the most loved elements of its older sister. There will be Fermob and Vogel, there will be red and blue. As with the lodge, Angama Safari Camp will have the very best of everything, but also just the right amount of everything,” adds owner of Angama, Nicky Fitzgerald.

The tents are unique in design with a distinctive look created through a playful and unusual roof shape. Below the roof sits a landscape-orientated inner tent, allowing for the bedroom, dressing room and w/c to open up onto the view. Designed for maximum cross ventilation, the tents also have a four-layer roof system to help keep them cool.

Inside, the guest tent beds will be extra-length king and can be made up as a double or twins. The ensuite dressing room, double bucket shower room and private w/c offer the same high levels of comfort as found at Angama Mara.

Tucked away in a forest below the towering western wall of the Great Rift Valley, guests will have access to extraordinary wildlife experiences right on their doorstep and can tailor-make their safari days, leaving the Safari Camp as early as 6:00 and returning after sundown at 19:30. Aside from the Migration, the region of the Mara Triangle where Angama Safari Camp is located is home to cheetah, resident prides of lion, large elephant herds, buffalo and abundant plains game.

Angama Safari Camp will welcome its first guests in early July and will operate until the end of September, with October on request. There is a minimum three-night stay and children of all ages are welcome.

“Angama’s little camp will delight our guests by capturing the essence of the glorious adventure of the Golden Age of the African safari – romance, privacy, unconstrained freedom, stories shared around the campfire, dinners lit only by starlight, gentle Kenyan service, the nights either wrapped in silence or filled with sounds of hyena and lions calling, surrounded by a million migrating ungulates,” concludes Nicky Fitzgerald.

Ends.
